TESTIMONIALS

The sessions were particularly informative for me, who was not versed in the Indian regulations.
I think the Schedule Y information was of particular interest to me.

It was of particular benefit to the group that Cliniminds focused on GCP, Tox studies, Pre-Clin studies, and Phase I-II-III. The assessment at the completion of the presented materials was great. It is always a must to assess competency as part of a training. All speakers were great presenters and had very good talks.

I have taken the course "Integrated Post Graduate Diploma In Clinical Research and Pharmacovigilance" during the period of May - July, 2009.Having found it myself on-line, I found it very important to be sure the site was reliable. From the very first steps of my on-line interaction with the course providers I put whatever initial uncertainties I had aside. The authors were committed, prompt, responsive and engaged. They would take all of my inquiries seriously and usually get back to me within 24 hours, which was more than understandable due to the time difference. This remained true from the transfer of advance payment up to the moment I was issued the graduation certificate. Above all though, it was the concept that caught my attention in the first place. The name of the course matched my area of interest and once I got my access rights I learned that its content lived up to it as well. Being put together in a comprehensive way, it also provided a user-friendly learning and knowledge testing interface and manageable timelines. I can recommend the course to anyone who is looking for the value for their money. The absence of any of the international English language evaluation requirement also saves money and time, provided one is already familiar with the specifics of the English used by the international clinical trials community, which no English course can be of much help with anyway.

Tomas Novak,

Very good faculty, very interactive and positive in accepting comments, queries and answering to their best capability and knowledge.

The content of presentation was adequate and simple for understanding to freshers as well.
